Airline continues to upgrade fleet to fuel robust international growth

Interjet announced it has taken delivery of its seventh Airbus A321neo, continuing to expand and upgrade its fleet. This aircraft, along with one additional A321neo to be delivered this year, will service both international and intra-Mexico destinations.

“We were the first airline in Mexico to take possession of the Airbus 321neo with CFM Leap-1A engines,” said José Luis Garza, CEO of Interjet, “and we continue to be impressed with its performance. The combination of the latest aircraft technology and engines make the A321neo the most efficient and quietest aircraft for our short and medium-haul flights. All Interjet A321neos will be configured for 192 passengers and are equipped with Geven Company’s light weight seat in Italian leather, offering an ergonomic shape, slim backrests and a very comfortable 34-inch seat pitch, comparable to many business class seats,” he added.

Interjet’s A321neos are also equipped with Panasonic’s innovative eXO IFE system with 12-inch HD screens, offering ‘theatre-like’, high-definition viewing. Interjet is also committed to providing the latest high-speed internet service to keep passengers connected and productive while in the air.
